Dear Friends, Donors and Sponsors:

Few subjects have drawn as much attention in recent years as artificial intelligence.

The possibilities are staggering – both for positive impact as well as some potential uses that could be frightening.

Tonight we'll delve into AI with two people who have expertise and can provide insights, as the Foundation welcomes Tom Gruber and Molly Wood.

The New Albany Lecture Series and Student Lecture Series are regarded as one of the best in the country thanks in great part to our many donors and sponsors.

We are so proud of the series and the caliber of speakers we have been able to bring to New Albany and central Ohio.

We also are proud that more than 35,000 students representing 50 area schools have interacted with some of the most influential thought leaders of our time.

Through the years we have hosted Nobel Prize winners, Pulitzer Prize winners, respected diplomats, military leaders, economists, mental health advocates and more.

They have helped us fulfill our mission to promote lifelong learning and to provide a platform for civil discourse and community dialogue on important issues facing our society.

Perhaps never has this mission been more important than now.

The Foundation is grateful to all of the sponsors and donors whose generosity makes this all possible.

We look forward to seeing all of you again at the remaining programs as part of the 2024-2025 season.

With appreciation,

Craig Mohre, President
The New Albany Community Foundation

TOM GRUBER

Co-Founder, CTO and VP Design of Siri

TOM GRUBER is an innovator in technologies that augment human intelligence, individually and collectively. Applying ideas from Artificial Intelligence, Cognitive Science, and Design, his work has explored how connecting people and machines can foster collaboration, learning, knowledge sharing, and getting things done.

Tom was co-founder and head of design for the company that created Siri, the intelligent personal assistant. Siri was started in 2008, launched in early 2010, and was quickly bought by Apple. Now an integral part of the latest Apple products, Siri represents a new mode of interaction with devices and the information services they can reach. At Apple for 8 years, Tom led the Advanced Development Group, which developed new capabilities for Siri and future products.

Throughout his career, Tom has explored the intersection of AI and the UI between humans and computers. In the 1980's he built AI models for communication prosthesis systems that gave voices to the speechless, and interfaces for experts to build their own expert systems. At Stanford University he developed the first interactive documents on the web that generated natural language answers in response to questions about how things work. His AI research, particularly ontology engineering, helped lay the groundwork for semantic information sharing and the Semantic Web.

He has created several products and companies that support human collaboration and knowledge sharing.

At e-commerce pioneer CommerceNet, he invented HyperMail, the widely used open-source application that turns ordinary electronic mail into a web-based organizational memory — a searchable tapestry of links and threads and conversational networks. HyperMail was used as the archive and public forum for some of the key discussions that defined the emerging ideas of the early Web, and its progeny have since been used to manage tens of millions of online conversations.

He was founder and CTO of Intraspect Software, which created the space of Collaborative Knowledge Management — software that helps large communities of professionals contribute to and learn from a collective body of knowledge. Intraspect applications provide environments for professional people working together on line, collaborating in large distributed communities, and learning from each other. Intraspect was used by hundreds of corporate customers and many thousands of users in Financial Services, Marketing Services, Professional Services,

High Technology, and other globally distributed enterprises. Tom is also a founder and Chief Scientist of Consider Solutions, a consultancy that helps Global 2000 companies to design and implement coordinated systems of technology, processes, and human organizations to maximize organizational effectiveness.

During the rise of Web 2.0, he founded and built RealTravel.com, a collective knowledge system where travelers from around the world shared their experiences through beautiful travel journals of their adventures. People looking for information about where to go, where to stay, or what to do in their travels learned from the authentic experiences of those who have been there. By applying machine learning to the global collection of travel journals, RealTravel was able to interview travelers and recommend places to go and adventures to follow. Over a million people used RealTravel to help plan their travel every month.

Today Tom is an impact advisor and public speaker. He promotes the philosophy of Humanistic AI, which he presented in a popular TED talk. He was a founding board member of the Partnership on AI to Benefit People and Society and advocates for the Center for Humane Technology. Tom has served as an advisor to interesting companies in enterprise collaboration (Consider, SocialText), social networking (LinkedIn), semantic web (Radar Networks), Natural Language Search (Powerset), mind mapping (Mindjet), financial services (Goldman), and open content (the Internet Archive). He currently advises companies and organizations that use AI to have a positive impact on humanity, including leaders in Assistive Neurotech, Mental Health Care, Intelligent Customer Interaction, and Predictive Assistance. He is co-founder and CTO of a new company doing Adaptive Music.

Tom is passionate about saving our global ocean and our collective intelligence. ~

CAS is proud to support the New Albany Community Foundation in its mission to help build an extraordinary community.

cas.org

Artificial intelligence (AI) is transforming a variety of sectors, including community initiatives. By offering tools for resource allocation, problem-solving, and data analysis, AI has the potential to significantly enhance how communities address social challenges and improve their members' quality of life.

As one of the brightest minds in AI today, Tom Gruber has set an inspiring example of how AI could be used for the betterment of people's lives, communities, and society. His work, alongside others highlighted through tonight's program, is proof that technology need not be abstract but, rather, an accessible resource for all.

At CAS, our scientists and technologists have long harnessed AI to build industry-leading solutions that empower researchers to innovate faster and with more confidence, ultimately improving people's lives. While the power of AI is undeniable, we know first-hand that human intelligence, creativity, and sense of purpose are the necessary elements to make AI a truly impactful and positive force in the world.

With the same passion that we build world-class scientific technology solutions for scientists, we also pour ourselves into initiatives that help our community. From hosting walks on our campus in support of cures for Alzheimer's, sarcoma, leukemia, and lymphoma, to tending to an urban farm together with our neighbors, to helping spark connections that provide opportunities to those in need year-round, we proudly do our part in creating a strong community.

Through his work, Tom Gruber shares not just his passion for AI but also his vision for a better world. We look forward to his conversation tonight with respected journalist turned climate tech investor, Molly Wood. We are thrilled to welcome Tom and Molly to our community!

How you can support THE NEW ALBANY LECTURE SERIES

A priority for the Foundation moving forward is to endow The New Albany Lecture Series. This will enable the Foundation to continue to present high-quality speakers while keeping lectures accessible to the entire community, including students, senior citizens and veterans. Additionally, endowing The New Albany Lecture Series would allow the Foundation to continue to invest in other transformative projects and initiatives in the community. Already, several families have established endowment funds to support the series.

If you are interested in establishing a fund or simply making a contribution to The New Albany Lecture Series Endowment Fund, please contact Craig Mohre at 614-939-8150 or craigmohre@newalbanyfoundation.org to support The New Albany Community Foundation's programming.

Our most important work happens outside the four walls of our bank. KeyBank gets involved by supporting people who make a difference and working with community-focused organizations through investments, philanthropy, and volunteering. Together we can keep our communities full of hope, compassion, and opportunity. KeyBank thanks the New Albany Community Foundation for making a difference.
